BROOKLYN GOSSIP.

Charles Tuthill, the veteran confidential clerk to Hyde & Lehman, theatre and race-track owners and investors, is a man of varied attainments. Even among the expert books of the big theatrical agents none knows better than he the ins and outs of things theatrical. He is methodical to a degree and for a quarter of a century collected data and statistics of the road. He was born in New York, his early career it ever been spent together. At a glance a man could count the distance from any one town to another, the size, the capacity of the houses, hotels and restaurants, the number of tenors and quantity of printing and paper needed, and the average receipts per dollar of nearly every theatre known to longer the crossroads. They were all lost when the historic playhouse that made his employers wealthy was destroyed by fire.

Benjamin Haynes, Superintendent of "Mayo Board's Sunday School," Rev. T. F. Nelson, his pastor, and several other gentlemen living on "the Hill," are spurring him on His Honor in the matter of the Gowanus Canal business.

This stately water highway, which runs from Erie Basin to Third street, separating two densely populated sections of South Brooklyn, has long been an eyesore and pestilence. Its banks are lined with sulphur, cream of tartar, camphor and other foul-smelling drugs, which, on the hot summer nights when windows are raised, permeate the atmosphere of that section of the town. In 1880 there was a commission appointed to examine into the nuisance. That was the last of it as far as the public was concerned. Their report was never published. Major Boddy pined over it shall be.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Maxwell and the principals of the city are proud of the mental advancement of the public schools. They would like to give the world a clear demonstration of the practical results of our local educational system. It is their intention that the public school children of Brooklyn shall have an exhibit at the Columbian Exposition at Chicago next year. Just what shape the exhibit will take on has not been announced, but the Board of Education has asked the Board of Estimate to make a reasonable appropriation for that purpose.

Hiram W. Hunt, who has been recently appointed by Justice Pratt as one of the five commissioners to shall plan a system upon and permanent basis for the Water Supply and Conservation of the City Water Supply Company's Works is a well-known Brooklynite. Mr. Hunt is a retired tobacco merchant of means, and prominently identified with local clubs. He is one of the regulars at the Brooklyn Club and an expert whist-player. In politics he has always been an independent, with accredited benevolent tendencies.
